Micro article: Ok, Ok so Glenn Beck wants us to go on the gold standard because (like the daffy Ron Paul) he says gold has intrinsic value. Nothing has intrinsic value. Intrinsic means wholly contained within itself. In means independent of outside influences. Just not possible. Does the fact that Glenn shills for a company that sells gold bricks and coins with his image on them color his judgement? Do you think? Also how does one go about selling gold. If they are real recognizable coins they might be worth the full value but if they have Glenn's picture on them might you not think they are gold painted party clay. What is party clay? It's clay used at Glenn Beck's birthday party. Happy birthday Glenn! What a tool.
